

ABSTRACT

A system, computer-readable medium and method for performing intelligent data pre-staging for a job submitted to a cluster environment. The method aspect comprises determining availability of compute resources including availability timeframes to process the submitted job, determining data requirements for processing the job and determining a co-allocation in time reservation.